As Massachusetts envisions a fossil fuel-free future, gas companies are quietly investing billions in pipelines

Over the past year we've been working closely with our friends at the Gas Leaks Allies to raise awareness about how gas leaks suffocate and kill trees. The news about gas just gets worse. This week GLA released a new report that finds that Massachusetts’ gas pipe replacement program is no longer financially sound and is not meeting its goals. Intended to increase safety and reduce emissions, the Gas System Enhancement Program (GSEP) has become a massive boondoggle. Projected to exceed $20 billion, it’s the Big Dig you’ve never heard of.

“When do we stop investing in what is essentially as-good-as-new infrastructure, when what we really must be about is walking away from the natural gas enterprise as we know it?” — Senator Mike Barrett
